

After The Grippe

"I am much pleased, to be able to write and thank you for what Cardui has done for me," writes Mrs. Sarah J. Gilliland, of Siler City, N. C.

"Last February, I had the Grippe, which left me in bad shape. Before that, I had been bothered with female trouble, for ten years, and nothing seemed to cure it. At last, I began to take Cardui. I have taken only three bottles, but it has done me more good than all the doctors or than any other medicine I ever took."

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

For the after-effects of any serious illness, like the Grip, Cardui is the best tonic you can use. It builds strength, steadies the nerves, improves the appetite, regulates irregularities and helps bring back the natural glow of health.

Cardui is your best friend, if you only knew it. Think of the thousands of ladies whom Cardui has helped! What could possibly prevent it from helping you? Remember you cannot get the benefit of the Cardui ingredients in any other medicine, for they are not for sale in any drug store except in the Cardui bottle. Try Cardui.

TWO YEARS AGO ROSEMONT

Was only a pasture field, without a sign of a house or prospect of one.

TODAY

It is a perfect "City Beautiful" with 19 handsome brick homes, two more to be started this month, every resident owning his own home. Do you realize the improvements that have been made in Rosemont? There are granolithic sidewalks, paved gutters, for surface drainage only, good streets, beautiful parking kept in perfect order, city water, gas and electricity, street lights, a fine sewerage plant, fire plugs, night and day police protection, the night watchman having to register all over the property with a watchman's clock every hour, a beautiful electric station with a public phone for the use of the residents; in other words everything that the best residence section inside of Alexandria has, and with good sidewalks and paved street right into town, and a 3c car fare to the shopping districts. There is much more to tell which will appear in the next article published in this space.

Ways of the Alligator.

Late one afternoon, when the lagoon was aglow with the wonderful copper hues of a Papuan sunset, some one pointed out to me a long dark streak moving swiftly across the water 200 or 300 yards away, and in the streak just the slightest speck of black. It was an alligator at last!

"Now you see why you can't go swimming in the lagoon," I was told. "They are worse than sharks. They don't show themselves and give you a chance. They just come down underneath you and pull you down, and that's all you or any one else knows about it. They don't eat you at once, only hold you under the water until you are drowned or half pulled to pieces and then store you away somewhere under a bank or in a hole till you are 'high' enough to be savory—just as you would do with a pheasant, you know. He's a knowing beggar, the alligator. The shark isn't it with him for brains and savvy."—Wide World Magazine.

The Spider.

Of all the solitary insects I have ever seen the spider is the most sagacious, and its actions to one who has studiously considered them seem almost to excel belief. The spider is formed by nature for a state of war, not only upon other insects, but upon its fellows. For this state nature seems to have formed it with singular perfection. Its head and breast are covered with a strong natural coat of mail, which is impenetrable to the attacks of every other insect, and its lower parts are enveloped in a soft, plant skin which eludes the sting even of a wasp. Its legs are terminated by strong claws not unlike those of a lobster, and their vast length, like spears, serves to keep every assailant at a safe distance. Not worse furnished for observation than for attack or defense, it has several eyes, large and transparent, covered with a horny substance, which, however, does not impede its vision.—Scotsman.

Not What They Seemed.

A marquis who was in residence for a few days at a Parisian hotel discovered that her pearl necklace, worth $15,000, had disappeared from her room. Suspicion fell on a messenger boy, who admitted his guilt, but declared that the necklace had been taken from him by his mother. The mother corroborated her son's statement, expressing astonishment that so much trouble should be made about "a trashy little trinket," which, she explained, looked so cheap and tawdry that she had given it to her daughter-in-law. This young woman, in her teens, displayed an equal contempt for the "bits of things." She told the police that she had given the necklace to her little girl to wear, but she had removed about half the beads. All the missing pearls were found in a box among buttons and hooks and eyes.

A Glimp of Hope.

They were evidently from the country and had wandered into the first place of amusement they found. A performance of "Richard III." was in progress, and after buying tickets they went squeaking down the aisle, led by the usher, to seats well toward the front.

They watched the stage at first with hope of some excitement, but with steadily decreasing interest. At last the young woman touched the young man.

"Let's go out, Jim," she said. "It's more interesting out in the street." "Let's hold on a minute longer," returned her escort. "It cost considerable to get in and, besides, that clown has just called for a horse. I shouldn't wonder if the show's really going to begin now, Emma."—Youth's Companion.

When Cricket Was a Crime.

Under a statute of Edward IV. England's great national pastime, cricket, was declared a crime, owing to the game having become so popular that it interfered with archery, the then sport of kings. The law was rigorously enforced, and every person convicted of playing the game was fined 10 and sent to prison besides. It was not until the formation of the famous Hambledon Cricket club in 1749 that the statute was repealed.—Dundee Advertiser.

The Retort Direct.

"See here," cried the artist who had come to complain about the materials he had bought. "I can't imagine anything worse than your paints." "That's strange," replied the dealer. "Don't you ever use your imagination on your painting?"—Catholic Standard and Times.

Followed the Leader.

Master—Who can tell me what useful article we get from the whale? Joanne—Whalebone. Master—Right. Now, what little boy or girl knows what we get from the seal? Tommy—Sealing wax.—London Scraps.

Cautious.

"What's a' yer hurry, Sandy? It's no 10 o'clock yet!" "Well, ye see, Ah've changed ma lodgin's, an Ah'm no verra weel acquainted wi' th' new tavern."—London Bystander.

Prostrated.

"Poor thing! Did she take her husband's death much to heart?" "Why, she's prostrated with grief! She can't see a soul except the dressmaker."

Improving.

We think the world is growing better. There seems to be an increasing determination to make the other fellow do what is right.—Puck.

PASTOR LEAVES CHURCH.

Following the marital troubles between himself and wife, which culminated this week in a divorce in Reno, Nev., the Rev. George Brodthage, pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church, 320 Four-and-a-half street southwest, Washington, has left the pastorate of the church temporarily—at least, abandoned the ministry, and is now engaged in secular pursuits. Mrs. Maria S. Brodthage, his wife, was granted a divorce in Reno on September 13, whither she had gone several months ago, after several serious disputes with her husband, which at the time threatened to disrupt the church. Part of the congregation sided with the pastor, and others with the wife. Brodthage made several sensational charges against her husband at the time that their troubles came before the public, and soon afterward left the parsonage which is attached to the church.

SPREAD OF CHOLERA.

There are 14 suspected cases of cholera on board the coasting steamer Atotico, which arrived at Almeria, Spain, yesterday from Alexandria.

A bacteriological examination in three fatal cases in Danzig, Prussia, has established that death in each instance was due to Asiatic cholera. Fifteen new suspected cases were placed under observation yesterday.

Another suspected cholera patient was sent to a hospital in Berlin Wednesday night. The suburb of Schoenburg also has a new suspect in the person of a commercial traveler who arrived there recently from the Orient.

Five new cases and two deaths from cholera have been reported during the past 24 hours in southeastern Italy.

Barbara Klee, aged 18, daughter of a dairy farmer of North Braddock, Pa., was bitten in two places on the ring finger of the left hand by a black snake while she was sleeping on a couch in the dining room of her home. The first bite the girl thought was the scratch of a pet kitten, but a few minutes later she was awakened by intense pain. Lighting a lamp she saw a four-foot black snake crawling from the dining room into the kitchen and escaped into a rat hole. The girl's arm is badly swollen and blood poisoning is feared.

Europe was brought 10 minutes nearer to New York yesterday, when the Cunard liner Mauretania hung on a new trans-Atlantic record over the short course of 2,780 knots from Dunstaffnage Rock to the Ambrose channel lightship. Her time for the trip was 4 days, 10 hours and 41 minutes, 10 minutes better than her record of September 30, 1909. For this voyage her high day's run was 661 knots, and her average speed 26.06 knots an hour.

Angered because his employer refused to give him a dollar, James White aged 55, a farmhand, is alleged to have blown up the home of W. F. Barefoot, near Windber, Pa. White, it is said, tied a stick of dynamite to the end of a clothes pole which he placed against the house beneath the room of Mrs. Barefoot. He then exploded the dynamite. The side of the house was wrecked, but the family escaped injury.
